WOMAN, SIX FEET TALL IS ACCUSED OF HAVING SEVEN ANGRY HUSBANDS

Two Appear in Court and Trial Is Delayed to Allow Others to Testify.

New York, N. Y., July 29.—Standing more than six feet with shoulders broad in proportion, and wearing a great picture hat, a gown of many colors and large jewels, she was led into the New Jersey avenue police court, Brooklyn, between two policemen.

As she approached magistrate Nimmer, Charles Sigator, a small, determined looking man, stepped forward and said: "So you have my wife, Julia, at last, have you? I'm very glad. I imagine other husbands will be glad, too."

The woman gave Sigator a glance of scorn and laughed. "Have on, little one," she repeated, and then she laughed again.

Bigamy Charge. "I charge this woman with bigamy," said Sigator when his wife was brought to the bar. Sigator then told how on April 17, 1910, he had married

Julia at his residence, 478 New Jersey avenue, and how she had disappeared two weeks later with her wedding presents.

Mrs. Sigator, a woman of 35, stood glaring at Sigator while he spoke, but she changed her glances to another man as he stepped forward and told the magistrate that he was Marcus Weiss.

Weiss swore that he married the muscular Julia in April, 1905, and had given her handsome presents and money. Then about two weeks after the wedding day she disappeared.

Seven Men in Case. "If you will postpone this hearing until Thursday," broke in Albert Kintle, counsel for Sigator, "I'll have seven men in court who married this woman, and she is not divorced from any of them. Her scheme is to marry a man, get money and presents from him and then disappear. She would then get some rabbit to give her a divorce, go forth and get a new husband."

"I'll hold you in $1000 bail for examination Thursday," said the judge. "Let 'em all rave; let 'em all rave," spoke up Mrs. Sigator, as she shook the feathers on her hat and started for bail.

THE "OTHER WOMAN" TO STAY IN PRISON

Material Witness in Beattie Trial Under $5000 Bond, Cannot Make It.

Richmond, Va., July 29.—The plans to obtain the release of Beulah Binford, held as a material witness for the commonwealth in the Beattie murder case, have been promptly blocked by the state's representatives.

"A friend," whose identity remains hidden, offered to furnish the $1000 bond, but the commonwealth's attorney decided that bail should be increased to $5000.

Miss Binford is to be kept in jail until the trial.

The girl has given up hope of obtaining bond and takes no comfort from the many letters she is receiving from all parts of the country. Her letters contain offers of sympathy and of marriage and even of engagements.

On the vaudeville stage—but no offers of the ball bond of $1000.

"The evidence in our possession," said associate prosecutor Wandenburg, "is sufficient. That which has been gathered later would only be cumulative and really isn't necessary."

MAY GO TO ASIA FOR GOLDEN FLEECE

Fred Knollenberg May Go in Search of Famous Mohair.

An El Pasoan may go to Central Asia on a quest for the golden fleece of the mohair goats, that are raised in that country as in no other country of the world.

Fred C. Knollenberg may make the long journey into interior Asia with Dr. C. C. Young in search of full blooded mohair animals for the National Mohair Growers' association.

Dr. Young has a special permit from the emperor of Russia to bring out 50 more full bloods for his karakul sheep ranch in Texas. If Mr. Knollenberg accompanies him, arrangements will also be made for the exportation to the United States of a small herd of Asiatic mohair goats for the purpose of improving the strain of the mohair goats in this country.

Mr. Knollenberg is now in correspondence with the association officers regarding the proposed trip.
